

About Annet Boessenkool

In 1992 I moved from Arnhem (where I grew up) to Utrecht for my study "Science and Policy" at Utrecht University. In 1995 I supplemented this with Economics at Hull University in England. In 1998 I started in the renewable energy development as a Product Manager and International Business Development Manager at Nuon. At Nuon I was given the opportunity, among other things, to work in Spain and Norway.

In 2006 I founded Next Energy to continue my passion for renewable energy for various clients. I have been doing this with great pleasure for years, initially mostly abroad, but currently mainly in the Netherlands. The renewable energy sector, government policies, developments with local participation are constantly changing, so I keep working on new things every day. In addition, I get a lot of energy from working together with nice, enthusiastic and professional colleagues in this sector.

Currently I live together with Matthijs and our three children in the beautiful city of Utrecht. I love to run and I spend a lot of time on the hockey field on weekends with my own hockey team or with the children.
